

Anti-Trust Statement

The free exchange of ideas among insurance professionals is SITE's greatest offering, but please be mindful of critical anti-trust considerations as you participate in SITE events. Federal anti-trust laws protect our competitive, free-market economy by prohibiting certain activities that may lead to price fixing among competitors. Seemingly innocuous discussions, occurring in the social atmosphere of a conference, could later be construed as collusion. Therefore, it is advisable not to engage in discussions centering on any of the following topics as they relate to your place of employment:

- Labor or parts pricing
- Pricing and costs of autos or auto insurance
- Cost and profit margins
- Market division between customers and suppliers
- Reputation/business practices of repair shops, parts manufacturers, dealers, suppliers, insurance companies or any related business entities
- Policy and guidelines for claim handling and settlement
- Future business directives, including the development or marketing of new products or services

Each SITE member or event participant is obligated to speak up immediately for the purpose of preventing any discussion falling outside the bounds indicated.
